Whether it's a spacious room with a central island or a tiny kitchen in a crowded city apartment, the kitchen is the setting for many of life's most memorable moments. Since we spend so much time cooking, eating, and just hanging out in the kitchen, it's important that it feels at home. Fortunately, decorating with the right flowers can be all you need to turn your average kitchen into the gathering space of your dreams. If you gravitate towards elegance and simplicity in your decoration, consider the classic all-white kitchen. It has a clean, airy feel that looks particularly great with lots of natural light from windows or lanterns. You can avoid too clinical a feel by choosing materials with interesting textures like smooth subway backsplash tiles or shiny lacquered cabinets. Fortunately, there are many beautiful natural materials such as marble, quartz and granite that come in stunning shades of white. Add a few colors with bright green houseplants or decorative bowls for visual interest and showcase your personal style. LEK_3DPHOTON/Getty Images If you're looking for a neutral colour for your kitchen but want a more modern look, grey. This versatile option can feel warm or cool depending on the shade you choose. He Goes well with other neutrals like white or black, but bright colors like lime green or red looks amazingly cool if you want to go for a bolder style. onrondongel / Getty Images Images Your kitchen is nautical sweep, adding navy accents. Consider using the navy as a wardrobe color or as an eye-catching accent wall. The navy looks particularly fresh and bright when paired with clean neutrals like white or gray or with sunny shades of yellow. A little goes a long way though, so try it with a tablecloth, placemats, or even a simple vase to see how it works in your space. RAUL RODRIGUEZ/Getty Images After a trip to the farmers market, our kitchens are already overflowing with greenery. Fruit bowls can pop with bright green Granny Smith apples while dark green spinach and cabbage leaves fill with crunchy boxes. Why not let your food inspire your kitchen decor? Bright green has an effect both invigorating and soothing at once, while pale green shades have a charmingly retro feel. All shades of green pair well with browns for a peaceful, nature-inspired kitchen decor. Tulcarion/Getty Images The kitchen can be a lively place with lots of people coming and going and all the activities are cooking, eating and cleaning. Try adding soothing influences with turquoise blue decor. Soft turquoise reminds us of the ocean or clear sky, and can look particularly good with other pastel colors or natural shades for the instant charm of the cottage. Adding color like turquoise blue against a single wall or row of cabinets also anchors the white kitchen without suppressing it. Glass tiles are another way to use this color in a subtle but powerful way. KatarzynaBialasiewicz/Getty Images Pink can be such a pickup color, it's the perfect shade to use in a modern kitchen. But if your goal is a modern, complex look, save the shade you choose pastel. Compared to dark or bright shades, pale pink or blush tinted color is much better suited for adult flats or townhome. Pair it with dark colors or metallic shades for a more natural look, or throw in more pastels for kitchen color candy. ume illus / Getty Images Make it almost impossible for those who feel sad in your kitchen by choosing yellow for your decor. This sunny shade is a great choice to brighten up kitchens that have no natural light or which are on the smaller side. For fresh results, go for a lemon hue and combine it with neutral for a light and airy kitchen your family members will love to spend time in. ArchiViz/Getty Images Make your kitchen a cozy gathering place using wooden decor in shades of brown. Yes, it is true that kitchens that have a lot of wood may look more traditional, but it is easy to turn it into a modern, cozy shelter with textures and materials. Choose a choice that showcases rustic style like open beams and unfinished countertops or natural materials such as jute, burlap and straw. Peter_visual/Getty Images When it comes to neutral, black may be the deepest, but that doesn't mean black kitchen cuisine Look dark and sad. Choose granite or marble countertops with interesting natural variations in their patterns, or combined with stainless steel appliances and glass lamps for a cool industrial atmosphere. Matte or satin finishes for black paint are more modern than the problematic or lacquered look. piovesempre/Getty Images stainless steel appliances have been popular for a while now, but why not take it to the next level with all the stainless kitchen? You can pretend to be a famous restaurant chef in your own home with shiny, easy-to-clean countertops, fixtures and sinks. Silver acts as neutral, making it easy to pair with other neutral or bright colors. Seanoriordan/Getty Images Whit and Andrea Kwalls' kitchen now has a pop of color, trash storage that's hidden in plain sight, and much-needed ventilation. When your home doesn't meet your family's needs, it's time to customize your space. Seven years ago, Whit and Andrea Kwalls bought this house as newlyweds, then they had three children and they recognized some problems. Problematic areas This half wall at the entrance of the house is uncomfortable and unnecessary. He has to go! At the entrance, guests are sharply greeted by a half-wall and a column. It serves behind the scenes for girls who love to perform the show, but Mom and Dad still want him gone to open up some space. Whit and Andrea's fridge is too big for this place. The family can barely open the door because it is so close to the island. So we're going to move the island. The couple are also concerned about the fridge - it's too big for space and too close to the island. When Andrea opens the door, the two almost touch! There's no place for someone to walk between the fridge and the island, so we're going to move the island, and Chelsea wants to paint it too. This room needs more ventilation than the microwave can provide. The range is not properly ventilated - this is often the case with over-range microwave ovens - so we're going to install a range of hoods that vent through the roof, and move the microwave. These are the problem areas. Now let's work on these projects! Page 2 House is much more open and appealing without this awkward half-wall. We'll cut the drywall cleanly at the end of the half-wall where the demolition will end. We then remove all the trim board so we can remove all drywall from the stud. Next, we'll remove the final support, install a new drywall, and add a connection so that Whit and Andrea can paint the area. After that we have to replace the floor where half the wall used to be. The underground is rough, but that's ok because we have custom building products' SpeedFinish, the floor patch dries up within 15 minutes. Moving the island adding feet to the island gives it more detail and visual interest. We're going to reschedule so that the family has more space between him and the fridge. Fortunately, he was kept on the floor with glue, so it was easy to move. How To blessing, there was flooring under the island, so we don't have to install new floors. Chelsea noticed that moving the island also meant moving the open trash can closer to the living room, so she wanted to build a closet to hide that container. The bin cabinet will allow the Kwalls family to hide all their rubbish in plain sight. Chelsea and Andrea paint cabinets using HomeRight paint sprayer and HomeRight Spray shelter to prevent excessive from touching surrounding items. Page 3 of Danny and Chelsea set the microwave on the island. We removed the microwave from under the cupboards and cut holes in the ceiling for the duct, which will vent the new hood range. I then get on the roof and cut the access hole to the range of the duct hood. Now we are ready to install the broan range hood, which has a three-speed engine and moves 600 cubic feet of air per minute with a super-quiet engine. As for the microwave, we cut a hole for this on the island, add a shelf, and we have what appears to be a built-in microwave! Now, Whit and Andrea have a space that really fits their family's needs, and the materials for this project cost less than $1,000. The kitchen now has proper ventilation, which is great because Whit and Andrea love to cook! If you have silver or silver items, sooner or later you will have to deal with stained surfaces. Here's how to take that denigrate at once. Watch the video. Blinds are a common treatment window; they have been for decades. And they haven't really changed that much - so far. Watch the video. When the flooring has a void, it is necessary to dry the surrounding pattern, not just to patch the hole. Here's how to do it. Watch the video. Video.
